

Gracie Fields entertains building workers in 1937, after laying the foundation stone for the Prince of Wales Theatre, London. Once thought tone-deaf, the British have had a profound impact on the century's music

