

IT is possible that one day the name JEAN CHADWICK may top theatre bills in this country. It is equally possible that she may never be heard of again.

Jean is the fifteen-year-old kid from Church-street, Rochdale, who gave a little impromptu song in the street before Gracie

Fields could get a note in from the Town Hall balcony.

"That kid's not bad," said Gracie to her agent BERT AZA. "See what you can do for her."

Aza has already got her a month's work at £10 a week.

Gracie — what a warm-hearted woman she is! — has now given Jean a couple of dresses and treated her to a new hair-do.

BLOOD DONORS ARE STILL URGENTLY NEEDED

*Bernard Jenkins Esq.
Staddon
Walsingham
Yelverton
Devon*

"How I envy the Princess her first sight of Capri! To describe it you have to talk daft, like a guidebook"