

Television award for Gracie

Singer Gracie Fields, who in 1930 was the first artist to perform on television, pictured when Mrs. John Logie Baird (right), widow of the television pioneer, presented Baird awards at the Royal Albert Hall, London. The occasion was the Baird festival of television and Gracie was one of 30 people who received awards—given for special contributions to television.